

CALL FOR PAPERS

International Graduate Legal Research Conference (IGLRC) 2017

The tenth annual IGLRC will be held on 3-4 April 2017 at King's College London, in the heart of London's legal district. The conference provides PhD students and early career researchers with an unparalleled opportunity to present their work and engage in academic debate. Eminent scholars and practitioners in each subject field will chair the subject panels.

Topic

This year's topic is "Law and Crisis". The topic can be interpreted to mean crises within the law itself or the law's response to crises. The word 'crisis' is to be interpreted broadly. The conference would welcome papers that engage with legal and institutional responses to political, economic, environmental, social and cultural crises, as well as the issues faced by legal systems in accommodating non-state systems of governance or social, religious and economic differences. These are merely examples and the scope of the conference is not limited to the sub- themes mentioned.

Submissions from all legal and interdisciplinary fields are welcome. We encourage creative approaches to interpreting the topic and look forward to seeing how it relates to your area of research, and international and transnational perspectives are highly welcomed.

Abstracts

Abstracts should be no longer than 300 words in length. Please note that submissions should be sent to iglrc2017@gmail.com. The subject of the e-mail must be IGLRC2017. Finally, please be aware that submissions from applicants without a valid university or institution email address will be rejected.

The closing date for receipt of abstracts is Monday, 30th January 2017. Successful applicants will be informed by 20th February 2017. The authors of abstracts selected for presentation will be expected to submit completed papers (maximum length 6,000 words) by 31st March 2017.
